

Hakan SARI was born in 1964 in Konya, Turkey. After his primary and secondary education in Konya he made his postgraduate education in Kırşehir and Ankara then he completed his postgraduate studies at the University of Warwick and Oxford Brookes University in England. In 2001, He received the title of Asst. Assoc. Dr. and in the same year he was appointed as the Founder Head of the Special Education Department. He was appointed as the university ERASMUS coordinator in 2005. He also worked as the General Director of the Special Education and Counselling Services in the Ministry of Turkish National Education. Assoc. Prof. Dr. Hakan SARI has many published books and academic articles in special education field in national and international levels. Currently he is the Head of Special Education Department and the Director of Education, Rehabilitation and Research Center for the Elderly and Disabled People in Necmettin Erbakan University and Coordinator and Consultant for the Disabled Office in the Turkish Higher Education Council in Ankara. Dr. Hakan Sari is married and has two children.